Javier / Yves

A client named Yves Andrés wants to hire a website designing team, lead by Javier Galán.

Yves: Good morning. I'm here because my company needs a new website.

Javier: Ok. What type of website do you need?

Yves: I need a website to create portfolios, templates or photography sets to show your digital identity online.

Javier: That's interesting. What is the website's goal?

Yves: We want the website to be able to sort/classify? photographs and other types of personal data.

Javier: That's okay, I understand. Is there something else?

Yves: The company wants a clean design with a bright color palette and a list of photographs arranged in a card list. We would also like the website to be mobile friendly.

Javier: We have some samples for you to have an idea what your website will look like. Would you like to see them?

Yves: Yes, please.

Javier: Take a look.

Yves: Those websites are cool, but they seem old and too serious. We want a new more modern design.

Javier: Of course. What will be the website's wireframe be like ?

Yves: Wireframe? What do you mean?

Javier: We can use Figma for the developing process. Figma is for people to create, share, and test designs for websites, mobile apps and other digital products and experiences.

Yves: Ok, I think it's a great idea. We are going to present the website on the company's 10th anniversary. Do you think the website will be ready by that time?

Javier: When is the anniversary?

Yves: On 12th December.

Javier: Ok. The website will be ready by then.